Doctor's trial delayed until August

by Tony Fyffe
BSN Managing Editor

PIKEVILLE — The trial of a former Paintsville pain clinic doctor charged with federal drug offenses has been continued.

U.S. District Judge Amul R. Thapar Friday granted a motion by Rano Bofill's new attorneys to continue his trial, which was set for May 28 in federal court in Lexington. The proceedings were continued to Aug. 19 in federal court in Lexington.

Attorneys Marc S. Murphy and Michael M. Denbow of Louisville, who were substituted as counsel of record for Bofill earlier this month, filed a motion last Wednesday asking for a continuance, saying they needed more time to prepare for trial due to the "large quantity of discovery and the relative complexity of the issues in this case."

Bofill was a doctor at the now-closed Care More Pain Management, which was owned by Tammy Cantrell and Shelby Lackey. All three were indicted in September 2012 on federal charges of conspiring to distribute and unlawfully dispense pain pills at the clinic.

Cantrell, 40, of Oil Springs, and Lackey, 50, of Williamsport, entered guilty pleas in April in U.S. District Court at Pikeville to conspiracy to distribute and unlawfully dispense oxycodone and to maintaining drug-involved premises. They are scheduled to be sentenced Sept. 5.

Bofill was employed by Care More after Dr. Richard Albert left and opened his own business. Albert was later indicted on federal drug charges, pleaded guilty and is set to be sentenced in June.

Ex-road worker pleads guilty

LOUISA — A former state highway department employee charged with drug trafficking while in a state vehicle was scheduled to go to trial in Lawrence Circuit Court on Monday, but instead entered a plea agreement Friday and is scheduled to be sentenced June 14.

Martin Wright, 37, pleaded guilty to first-degree trafficking and will be given three years of unsupervised probation, must enroll and complete drug court along with 180 days of home incarceration, according to the agreement.

Wright was indicted in July 2012. The indictment said that he was in physical possession of a schedule II controlled substance with the intent to traffic in oxycodone on June 12, 2012.

At the time of his arrest, Wright was employed as a superintendent I at the highways department's Lawrence County maintenance facility. Highway officials said he had been employed with the department since Oct. 30, 1996.

The Kentucky State Police at Post 14 in Ashland said in a press release that the alleged drug violation occurred when KSP troopers made a controlled delivery of intercepted narcotics.

The delivery took place at the Valero gas station just south of Louisa on U.S. 23, and Wright was awaiting INEZ — The Martin County Board of Education voted May 7 to hire Bath County School District personnel director Steve C. Meadows as the new superintendent of the Martin County School District, effective July 1.

The Martin County School District and Superintendent Mark Blackburn are also involved in litigation regarding the board's right to hire a new school chief and whether a contract in which the board agreed to hire Blackburn through 2017 is valid.

The issue was addressed in circuit court on April 22, during which Judge John David Preston issued a judgment concluding that " the extension of the contract was in violation of the board's policy," and that the contract extension approved July 10, 2012, is "void and unenforceable as a matter of law."

Blackburn filed motions to make additional findings and a motion to amend the findings on May 1, and an order was issued May 2 saying "It is hereby ordered

More than 8,000 in Big Sandy to be added to Medicaid

by Tony Fyffe
BSN Managing Editor

FRANKFORT — An additional 8,200 residents of Lawrence, Johnson, Floyd, Martin and Magoffin counties will be eligible for Medicaid benefits in 2014 following Kentucky's expansion of the federal program.

Gov. Steve Beshear announced Thursday the inclusion of 308,000 more Kentuckians in the Medicaid health insurance program, calling it "the single-most important decision in our lifetime for improving the health of Kentuckians."

Beshear said the Medicaid expansion along with the creation of the Health Benefit Exchange will ensure that every Kentuckian will have access to affordable health insurance.

The expansion, part of the controversial federal Affordable Care Act (ACA), will add a total of 8,194 people in Lawrence, Johnson, Floyd, Martin and Magoffin counties to the Medicaid program, according to state figures. Currently, 42,264 residents in those counties receive Medicaid coverage.

"I have repeatedly said that I believe it is in the best interest of the Commonwealth and its citizens to provide better access to health care for our people," Beshear said. "My only concern was the cost. We have now done the exhaustive research – and our conclusion matched what most other states have found: by expanding Medicaid, Kentucky will come out ahead in terms of both health outcomes and finances. In fact, if we don't expand Medicaid, we will lose money."

Medicaid currently provides health care for low-income or disabled citizens. After the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the ACA last year, states have the option to expand Medicaid eligibility to individuals who earn up to 138 percent of the Federal Poverty Level (FPL), with the guarantee that the federal government will cover the entire cost for the first three years.

The expansion will be effective Jan. 1, 2014. By expanding, every Kentucky citizen will have access to affordable health care, either through Medicaid or through the Health Benefits Exchange.

Individuals who earn more than 400 percent of the FPL can purchase insurance through the HBE, while those with income

SUIT: Regional jail case moved to Johnson County

the motion to dismiss Charles R. "Randy" Bowen's suit that, "Kentucky Civil Rule 56.03 provides that dismissal may be entered in favor of the moving party where there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law." "The record must be viewed in a light most favorable to the party opposing the motion for summary judgment and all doubts are to be resolved in his favor," the motion said. "Summary judgment is only proper where the movant shows that the adverse party could not prevail under any circumstances. Consequently, summary judgment must be granted only when it appears impossible for the nonmoving party to produce evidence at trial warranting a judgment in his favor."

The jail authority also argued that Lawrence Circuit Court is not the proper venue for the claims against the detention center and that the venue should be transferred to Johnson County, where the jail is located.

Circuit Judge John David Preston denied the motion to dismiss but transferred the suit to Johnson Circuit Court for further proceedings.

Bowen, of Lawrence County, is seeking a declaratory judgment directing board members to install him as administrator immediately under the same terms offered to the current job holder, F.D. "Pete" Fitzpatrick, as well as an award for costs and attorney fees.

Bowen is also asking for a judgment against the jail authority for violation of the state Open Records Act.

Bowen said in his complaint that he submitted an application to the jail authority for the administrator's position and that he met each of the advertised requirements and was interviewed prior to the board making its hiring decision.

The complaint filed by Bowen said that, "On June 19, 2012, Mike Crum resigned his position on the authority and on June 21, Martin County Judge-Executive Kelly Callaham appointed Chris Todd to replace Crum but that the appointment was never approved by the Martin County Fiscal Court and on the same day of his appointment, he attended a meeting of the authority where among other items on the agenda, the board voted to determine who would be hired as the jail administrator.

The issue hinges on the fact of whether Todd was legally appointed to the position and whether or not he should have been allowed to vote on the issues during the meeting without having first had the appointment approved by the Martin County Fiscal Court, according to the suit.

Ten authority members, including Todd, attended the meeting in which member Nick Frazier made a motion to hire Fitzpatrick as the jail administrator, the complaint said. Five members, including Todd, voted for Fitzpatrick and five members voted against him, the suit said.

Authority member Diane Watson then made a motion to hire Bowen as the Jail administrator, with five members voting for Bowen and five, including Todd, voting against him, the complaint says.

Bowen said in his complaint that it appeared for the moment that neither he nor Fitzpatrick had won the vote and that another board member, Rick May, made a motion to disqualify Fitzpatrick from further consideration due to "discrepancies in qualifications according to the advertisement."

During the meeting, members discussed whether or not Fitzpatrick had the required experience needed for the position the complaint also said and the authority voted with five members in favor of disqualifying Fitzpatrick due to his lack of qualifications and five members, including Todd, voted to not disqualify Fitzpatrick.

After the votes, the complaint says that Lawrence County Judge-Executive John Osborne pointed out to the authority that the Martin County Fiscal Court had not approved Todd's appointment and that, as a result, his appointment was not valid, rendering him ineligible to vote on any issues. After a lengthy discussion, the authority asked its attorney, Nelson Sparks, to determine whether Todd was a validly appointed member before adjourning the meeting, according to the suit.

Todd sent a letter to Callaham on June 27, 2012, purporting to resign from the authority, the complaint said, and on June 28, 2012, Callaham reappointed Crum to the position, which was approved by the Martin County Fiscal Court.

Later that same night, the authority met in a special meeting. Pursuant to the authority's bylaws, the authority must give three days notice of any special meeting, the suit said

The notice of the June 28, 2012, special meeting included two agenda items: "hiring a new secretary for the authority," and "signing the contract for the new administrator," the complaint said.

On June 27, 2012, the authority attempted to amend the agenda for the June 28, 2012, special meeting without giving the required three days' notice, the complaint said, and the purported amendment was to consider "hiring the administrator," as opposed to "signing the contract for the new administrator."

In addition to failing to give the required notice, it is "apparent" that some authority members did not receive the revised agenda before the meeting itself, the complaint said. After a period of "argument and infighting," the authority voted at the special meeting to hire Fitzpatrick as the jail administrator, and the authority entered into a contract with Fitzpatrick for the position which he still holds.

Bowen said in his complaint that when the authority voted at the regularly scheduled meeting on June 21, 2012, the Martin County Fiscal Court had not approved Todd as a member of the authority and as such, he was not eligible to vote at the meeting.

Because Todd was not eligible to vote, his vote on the issues taken up by the authority at the meeting should not count, but the remaining votes by eligible authority members should be counted and the results should stand as if Todd had not voted, the complaint says.

If Todd's vote is not counted, then the authority voted 5-4 not to hire Fitzpatrick, voted 5-4 that there were "discrepancies in qualifications according to the advertisement" with respect to Fitzpatrick's candidacy and voted 5-4 to hire Bowen, the complaint said.

The authority attempted to amend the agenda for the special meeting, but it did not give three days notice of the amendment and did not provide the notice to all its members, the complaint said.

The authority took up business at its June 28, 2012, special meeting that was not on the original agenda, namely voting to hire Fitzpatrick, and never took a vote to override or nullify its vote on June 21, 2012, to hire Bowen as the jail administrator, the complaint also said.

The complaint said the court should declare as a matter of law that the authority held a valid vote to hire Bowen as the jail administrator, that it never voted to nullify or override its vote to hire Bowen and that its vote to hire Fitzpatrick was invalid because it was not on the agenda for the June 28, 2012 special meeting.

The court should declare as a matter of law that Bowen be installed as the jail administrator immediately and further order the authority to do so, the complaint said.

Bowen also said in his complaint that he made a written request to the authority pursuant to Kentucky Open Records Act to inspect certain books and record and that the authority did not reply to the request in writing but instead gave him copies of "certain records," with no explanation as to what he was being given or what was being withheld, and it was clear that some documents requested were not produced, the suit says.

Bowen made a second written request under the Open Records Act and the authority again failed to reply to his request in writing, thus violating the Open Records Act, the suit said.

between 138 percent and 400 percent of the FPL will receive premium subsidies for insurance purchased through the exchange.

In Kentucky, Medicaid or Kentucky Children's Health Insurance Program (KCHIP) benefits are currently available to adults who have disability, serve as the caretaker relative for a child who is eligible for Medicaid and on average has income below 43 percent of (FPL), or are pregnant; and children with family income up to 200 percent of FPL.

The new threshold of 138 percent of FPL means a single person with no children earning less than $15,856 per year is eligible to sign up for Medicaid. A family of four with an annual income of less than $32,499 is also eligible.

Most of the Kentuckians who will be eligible are the working poor, a state press release said. This includes people who work at minimum wage jobs for fewer than 40 hours per week; individuals who are self-employed; or single parents whose children are covered through KCHIP.

In Lawrence County, an additional 1,243 people will be eligible for Medicaid, while 1,080 will have access to health insurance through the HBE with subsidies and 166 will have access without subsidies.

A total of 5,782 adults and children in Lawrence County were enrolled in the Medicaid program in 2012, with costs totaling $29,160,962, according to state figures.

An additional 1,698 Johnson Countians will be eligible for Medicaid, 1,494 will have access to insurance through the HBE with subsidies and 301 will have access without subsidies.

In 2012, 8,836 adults and children in Johnson County were received Medicaid coverage, with costs totaling $50,194,414.

The number of additional Floyd County residents who will be able to sign up for Medicaid totals 3,356, while 2,491 will have access through the HBE with subsidies and 523 will have access without subsidies.

A total of 16,203 Floyd County residents were enrolled in Medicaid last year, with costs totaling $85,272,921.

In Martin County, an additional 814 citizens will be eligible for Medicaid, 627 will have HBE access with subsidies and 114 will have access without subsidies.

A total of 5,079 adults and children were Medicaid participants in 2012, with costs totaling $24,800,867.

An additional 1,083 Magoffin County residents will be eligible for Medicaid, 825 will have HBE access with subsidies and 130 will have access without subsidies.

In Magoffin County last year, 6,364 people were in the Medicaid program, with costs totaling $38,020,528.

that the pending motion for oral argument filed by the defendant in this case is now moot."

The issue is on the docket to be heard in Martin Circuit Court during motion hour on May 16.

In the original filing, the Martin County BOE filed a petition for declaration of rights in which they said Blackburn's present contract will expire June 30, but that at a regular monthly meeting held July 10, 2012, a majority of the board voted to go into executive session for the purpose of discussing a proposed new contract for Blackburn to become effective July 1, immediately after his present contract expired. Board member Kimberly Meek was absent.

After returning to open session, the board voted to award Blackburn a new contract, with three members in favor and one, Donetta Harless, against, the document said.

By letter dated July 23, 2012, Gary Ball, editor of the Martin County-Tug Valley Mountain Citizen, submitted a written complaint to board chairwoman Kathleen Price alleging that the board had improperly gone into executive session in violation of KRS 61.810(1)(f) to discuss the proposed new four-year contract and proposed that the board revisit the discussion in open session, rescind the vote awarding the contract or in the alternative, agree not to address the issue until after the next election of board members, the terms of three of which expired on Dec. 31, 2012.

The board attorney at the time, John R. Triplett, responded that the board fell within the scope of the exception of the law as provided by KRS 61.810(1)(f).

The attorney general issued a formal opinion that determined that the board violated the Kentucky Open Meetings Act by entering into executive session and discussing, outside of public view, a proposed new contract for Blackburn. The opinion was not appealed.

The board later voted to rescind the contract previously approved by board members at their regular monthly meeting on Aug. 14, 2012.

The document also said that the board was prohibited from entering into a new contract by virtue of board policy, which expressly provides "The board may agree to enter into a new contract with the Superintendent at any time so long as the term of no Board member will expire in the interim between the making of a contract and its effective date. The new contract cannot become effective until the expiration of the present contract."

Board Chairman Craig Preece said via e-mail last week that the board received a favorable ruling in circuit court allowing them to continue their search for a new superintendent.

"A total of 34 applications were submitted for the position and the board contracted with the Kentucky School Board Association, Mike Oder to run the process on behalf of the board," Preece said. "A screening committee was established as per KRS Statute under Oder's direction and after all the applications were received and the screening committee was elected by their peer group, they reviewed all the applications. The board charged the screening committee to present five recommendations of potential candidates and they submitted six for consideration. The board is not bound or limited to the screening committee's recommendation, but it is a process to identify potential candidates and narrow down the field. The board chose three from the recommendations of the screening committee and picked three additional candidates based on their qualifications and references."

Preece said all six candidates were interviewed by the board, and that it was then narrowed to three "outstanding candidates" and that the board voted 5-0 to hire Meadows as superintendent.

Meadows is a 1981 graduate of Bath County High School. He received his B.S., occupational education and masters in business administration from Wayland Baptist University in Plainview, Texas, while serving in the U.S. Air Force, from which he retired in 2004.

Meadows received his M.A. in educational leadership, principal K-12 and superintendent's certification from Morehead State University.

Meadows has served as an assistant superintendent and an Interim superintendent in Bath County, where he is currently employed as the school district personnel director.

Meadows sought the position as superintendent in Bath County, but said in a telephone interview with The Big Sandy News that "I've been in the district for nine years and it wasn't the right time nor the right match. I wasn't what they were looking for."

Meadows is married to Robyn Meadows, who is an elementary school teacher. They have five children and two grandchildren, with another on the way.

"My kids are all grown," Meadows said. "I have a mission in life, and that is education. Failure to achieve a diploma is not an option. The military has served me well as far as leadership goes, but my future belongs to God. I'm a husband and a father and our goals are to improve the lives of our students and their possibilities and to prepare them for success."

the delivery while operating his state highway vehicle, the release said.

Wright is no longer employed at the state highway department.

Wright, represented by Eldred "Bud" Adams, filed a motion in November 2012 to suppress evidence, including certain pills and his interrogation, but the motion was denied.

In the motion, Adams said a Fed-Ex employee at the Ashland terminal pulled a package off a shelf, thereby ripping it open, and inside was a glasses case containing pills wrapped in a green cellophane wrapper addressed to Wright and with a return address in Austin, Texas.

Adams also said in the motion that a Fed-Ex supervisor also told the KSP that two other packages had been delivered to Wright in the recent past, but provided no other details.

The motion also said a KSP detective posing as a Fed-Ex delivery man made a controlled delivery of the pills to Wright at the Valero station. Upon completion of the delivery, the KSP detective identified himself and searched Wright, finding only a pocket knife with a one dollar bill in his billfold.

authorities in Magoffin County, the press release said. Through an extensive investigation, several stolen items were recovered, the release said.

Several leads in each jurisdiction pointed officers to items that had been stolen as far back as early April, primarily utility trailers, the press release, issued by the Johnson County Sheriff's Office, said.

Further investigation uncovered evidence that led deputies to a residence on Caudill Fork in Oil Springs, where they found Caudill with evidence at the scene, prompting his arrest, according to the release.

The investigation is ongoing by Clark and the Johnson County Sheriff's Office.

Anyone with information about the case is urged to contact the Johnson County Sheriff's Office at (606) 789-3411 or the local 911 dispatch center.

TRIAL: Case against pain clinic doctor reset

Approximately 60,000 Percocet pills were distributed by Bofill and Albert while they were employed at Care More, according to Cantrell and Lackey's plea agreements with federal prosecutors.

During Albert's tenure, the Kentucky Attorney General's Office received information and complaints from local law enforcement that the clinic was "seeing large numbers of patients," and investigators from the office conducted surveillance at the facility and on Albert, the agreements say.

After Albert resigned, Cantrell and Lackey hired Bofill, who "largely continued the prescribing practices of Albert," the plea agreements say.

With that mountain of information, Google can tell a lot about you: where you live, your hobbies, age, health problems, religion and more.

Of course, Google uses that data mostly to target you with ads. If you spend 20 minutes doing research on a gadget, for the next few weeks you'll probably be hounded by ads for that gadget wherever you go online.

Because search sites and other Web services have become so ingrained in our daily digital lives, it isn't really an option to stop using them.

However, you can keep a lower profile and put a little more distance between your personal data and Google. To start, you can clear out your Google search history.

To see what forgotten secrets lurk in your Google history, go to https://www.google.com/history and sign in with your Google account information. You'll see a list of everything you've ever searched for on Google.

You can browse through your searches and find them by day or Google service. Additionally, Google shows you personalized search trends, which can be interesting to look at.

To remove an unwanted search term, simply select click the checkbox next to it and then click the Remove Items button. You can select as many entries as you want at a time, or click the checkbox next to the Remove item button to select everything.

Once your information is removed, click the gear icon in the upper right corner of the page and choose Settings. Here you have the option to turn off your Web history. This will stop Google from recording anything else.

There is a catch to all this, of course - your information isn't really gone. Google will still keep your "deleted" information for audits and other internal uses. However, it won't use it for targeted ads or to customize your search results.

After your Web history has been disabled for 18 months, the company will partially anonymize the data so you won't be associated with it.

If you don't have a Google account, or don't usually sign in to it, Google still tracks your history. To accomplish this, it uses a cookie stored in your browser.

You can wipe out the information by deleting the cookie, but Google will just start recording new information. Instead, you can opt out of interest-based ads altogether by going to http://www.google.com/settings/ads.

If you're still concerned about stored information, your best bet might be to avoid using Google Search as much as possible. Alternative search sites DuckDuckGo and IxQuick parallel Google Search in features and performance, but don't collect any private information about you.

Microsoft's Bing Maps is a good replacement for Google Maps. Try using the venerable Firefox Web browser instead of Google's Chrome.

Battle of Paintsville topic of presentation

PAINTSVILLE — J.R. VanHoose will discuss the Civil War Battle of Paintsville Thursday, May 23, 2013 at 6 p.m. at the Johnson County Public Library.

His presentation will include how the Battle of Paintsville began, where it was fought, and how it ended. He will also discuss some interesting facts and people.

The idea for this presentation began as a small project to learn a little more about the history of Paintsville and the Civil War. In 1998, this idea became a piece on the Battle of Paintsville that VanHoose wrote for his senior English class taught by Dorothy Lewis. That article was published by Kentucky Explorer Magazine in its March 1998 edition.

VanHoose is a native of Paintsville and is currently a middle school social studies teacher at Phelps High School in Pike County. VanHoose graduated from Paintsville High School in 1998 and was a star basketball player for the Tigers. He was a Parade Magazine All-American in 1998 and was Kentucky's Mr. Basketball that same year as well. He accepted a basketball scholarship to Marshall University, where he was an all-conference player for the Thundering Herd in each of his four seasons there. He majored in liberal arts with an emphasis in history and was named a Verizon Academic All-American in 2002. After college, he was drafted by the North Charleston (South Carolina) Lowgators of NBA's Developmental League (NBADL) and played in a few other professional basketball leagues as well. He has been inducted into the Kentucky High School Athletic Association (KHSAA) Hall of Fame, the Marshall University Sports Hall of Fame and this summer he will be inducted into the Kentucky Association of Basketball Coaches (KABC) Hall of Fame.

He began his teaching career at his alma mater, Paintsville High School, in August 2003 as a teacher of high school and middle school social studies. In the summer of 2007, he moved to Phelps High School, where he is also the head coach of the girls' basketball team.

VanHoose's talk on the Battle of Paintsville is a free program sponsored by the Johnson County Public Library and is open to the public. Light refreshments will be served. Call the library at 789-4355 for more information.

Book discussion to be held at library

PAINTSVILLE — The book "Tried by War: Abraham Lincoln as Commander in Chief" by James M. McPherson will be discussed at the Johnson County Public Library Thursday, May 30, at 6 p.m.

The discussion will be led by Dr. Donald L. Barlow, associate professor of history at Big Sandy Community and Technical College. This discussion is part of the library's series of programs commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Civil War.

The book establishes fresh insights into the leadership of Lincoln. Suspenseful and inspiring, the book shows how Lincoln entered the White House with absolutely no military experience and assumed the role of commander and changed the course of the war.

Dr. Barlow

In "Tried by War," McPherson gives evidence of Lincoln's military effectiveness through well-reasoned and well-presented analysis.

Barlow holds PhD and M.A. degrees in history from Ball State University and a B.S. in social science with a major in history from Indiana Wesleyan University. He taught history at Bartlesville Wesleyan College and Oral Roberts University, both in Oklahoma, before coming to BSCTC in 1990.

He has served on the board of the Historical Confederation of Kentucky, as district coordinator for National History Day for many years and was selected to participate in a NEH History Seminar at Yale University in 1989. He participates in the annual Ohio Valley History Conference where he has presented many papers and chaired many sessions on history. Barlow is co-author of a textbook titled "The Western Dream of Civilization"

The program is free and open to the public. Books are available for check-out at the main desk of the library. Refreshments will be served. For more information, call the library at 789-4355.

Inventors forum slated for May 28

PRESTONSBURG — Young Professionals of East Kentucky and the Morehead State University/ACTC Innovation & Commercialization Center Team have partnered to create a new initiative in Eastern Kentucky called "i2b: innovation + invention = business!"

The initiative is designed to encourage inventors and innovators to come forward with their ideas and create new business opportunities for themselves and the region.

The initiative will kick off on May 28 at Jenny Wiley State Park at the Invention and Intellectual Property Conference.

The day's events will begin with a thorough discussion of patents and intellectual property by Lexington patent attorney, Jim Francis. Attorney Suzi Hixon will then discuss trademarks and copyrights. During lunch, retired business executive Rick Johnson will address the audience. Johnson has managed business ranging from start-ups to publicly traded, multi-million dollar companies. Later events include prototyping, financing your invention-based business, and a discussion on the potential for licensing your invention to a large company. At the close of the event, interested parties will have an opportunity to meet with representatives of the Innovation & Commercialization Center to discuss starting their business.

The conference will be held at Jenny Wiley State Park from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. and will cost $10, which includes lunch. Recent graduates or college students can attend free. Although YPEK is making a special effort to reach out to young inventors, the event is open to the public and to interested parties of all ages. Doors open for registration and networking with ICC staff at 9 a.m. Exhibitors are welcome.

To register or to learn more, contact Johnathan Gay at jgay@kyinnovation.com or at 859-797-5759.

Hospital week events planned

PAINTSVILLE — National Hospital Week is May 12-18, and Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center is using this opportunity to thank its dedicated staff.

"Recognizing the important role of each member of our staff is the true meaning behind National Hospital Week," said Debbie Trimble, CEO. "Anyone who has been to our hospital knows we are proud of the fact that we provide the latest in technology and services at our facility, but more importantly our staff works hard to provide superior care and excellent customer service."

The theme of this year's National Hospital Week is "A Guiding Light for Changing Times," which recognizes the important role that hospitals play in their communities. This week celebrates the history, technology and dedicated professionals that make our hospitals beacons of confidence and care.

"First and foremost, this week is a celebration of people," said Trimble. "It's about recognizing the people who work hard to provide superior health care 24/7. We're extremely proud of each member of our staff and we recognize the important role they play in making us a trusted health care partner in our community."

THERAPY DOG

JOYCE PALAZIO OF Boston, Mass., recently visited the Floyd County Animal Shelter on Sally Stephens Branch in West Prestonsburg. She was making her first trip to Eastern Kentucky in order to pick up her dog Colby, a 4-year-old Terrier mix that had been rescued by the Lawrence County Humane Society a couple of years ago. Colby not only overcame neglect but survived the nearly always fatal canine disease known as parvo. Now, after much training and love, he has attained the title of Therapy Dog from the National Association of Canine Nose Work. This organization started in California and now branches all over the world. This new canine sport involves placing scented Q-tips around a marked course and measuring the time it takes each dog to find the scented items. Palazio, who is also a cat lover, said Colby is her first dog, and her immediate plans were to return to Boston, where she and Colby will visit area hospitals where victims of the recent terroristic bombings are being treated as a result of what occurred at the end of the Boston Marathon Race. After that, Colby will participate in more competitions, but most importantly will continue his primary job as a Therapy Dog to people who will benefit most fro the affection and love of a true American hero.

The more you mix and match Web services, the less any one company is able to form a complete picture of you.

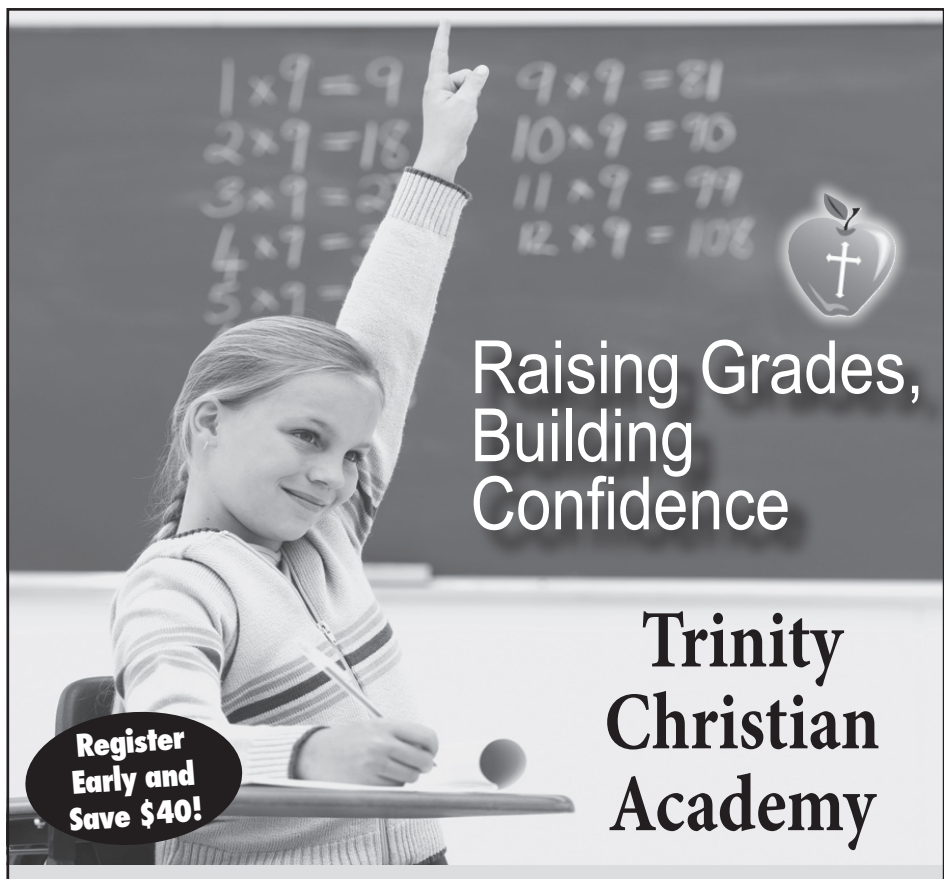

Don't forget that while you're busy surfing the Internet, your browser is also busy making a list of the sites you visit. Anyone who gets access to your computer can see it.

You can delete some or all of the websites you've visited by going to your browser's options menu. Or you can use a free third-party cleaner program like CCleaner.

If you want to surf the Web without leaving a trace, all modern browsers have private, or incognito, browsing. While in this mode, your browser will ignore cookies and won't record visited sites to your browser's history.

Just don't confuse private browsing with anonymity. Your Internet service provider (and your employer if you're on a work computer) can still track the sites you're visiting. Avoiding that tracking requires an entirely different set of steps.

TRMC recognizes Hospital Week

LOUISA — Ask local hospital employees why they chose their health care profession, and you'll likely hear about their passion for helping others or the rewards of making a difference; you won't hear that the reason was their desire for recognition or public accolades.

The contributions of health care employees often go unnoticed by the general public, but are evident every day in the success stories of the patients they serve and in the quality of care they give to their community.

National Hospital Week, May 12-18, celebrates the history, medical advances, and dedicated professionals who make up the health care industry. This year's recognition theme is "A Guiding Light for Changing Times." Sponsored by the National Hospital Association, National Hospital Week began in 1921 to build a culture of open communication between hospitals and the communities they serve.

"A strong and vibrant health care system is the heart and soul of a community," says Greg Kiser, CEO of Three Rivers Medical Center. "All of our staff members contribute to the well-being of the people who live and work in the area providing health education, routine and lifesaving medical care, and access to the latest medical advances. We're proud to be a part of this community."

Various events are being planned to honor and recognize the tireless efforts of all staff members. These events include afternoon snacks, employee staff appreciation day and an employee awards banquet. Each employee will also be presented with a gift of appreciation as part of the hospital week activities.

Lawrence County 0

Ashland Blazer senior pitcher Logan Salow pitched a perfect game on Saturday, leading the Tomcats to a 2-0 win over 15th Region title contender Lawrence County in the King of the Mountain Classic in Prestonsburg.

Salow, who has committed to play for the University of Kentucky as a preferred walk-on, only needed 79 pitches to work his way past Lawrence County. The talented Ashland starting pitcher registered 18 strikeouts.

Lawrence County pitcher Joe Wallen took the loss.

Ashland scored both of its runs in the top half of the third inning. Jared Slone provided Ashland with a two-RBI single in the third, allowing both Evan Cox (double) and Salow (walk) to score.

Ashland had nine hits in the victory.

Lawrence County was charged with two errors in the loss.

Former 16th Region rivals Ashland and Lawrence County met for the first time in the 2013 Kentucky high school baseball season.

Ashland also edged host Prestonsburg 2-1 in the King of the Mountain Classic on Saturday.

Lawrence County 1,
Prestonsburg 0

The Lawrence County Bulldogs landed in the win column with a hard-fought 1-0 victory over fellow 15th Region powerhouse Prestonsburg in the King of the Mountain Classic at StoneCrest Park.

Lawrence County starting pitcher Brandon Stevens earned the win.

Another Lawrence County hurler, freshman Austin Bailey, recorded the save.

Prestonsburg senior pitcher Trey Stapleton suffered the loss.

The determined Bulldogs squeezed a runner across home plate in the top half of the seventh inning for the game-winning run.

Lawrence County exited the weekend 19-9 overall. The Bulldogs entered the final week of the regular-season with games remaining versus East Carter (May 14, home), Allen Central (May 15, home), Belfry (May 16, home) and Greenup County (May 17, home).

Lawrence County is scheduled to face Paintsville in the 57th District Tournament at Johnson Central on May 21.

The Lady Bulldogs pulled away to defeat 57th District rival Magoffin County 16-8 on Thursday. Lawrence County erupted offensively, tying a single-game season-high for runs in the convincing victory.

The Lady Bulldogs ventured Perry County Central on Saturday to compete in the Tim Short Auto Classic. Lawrence won two of three games in the Perry County Central-hosted high school softball event.

Letcher County Central managed to edge the Lady Bulldogs 6-5 in the Tim Short Auto Classic. Lawrence County, however, prevailed in two other games. The Lady Bulldogs slipped past Clay County 5-4 and held on to defeat Perry County Central 6-4.

Lawrence County is currently tied for the most wins in the 15th Region. The Lady Bulldogs exited the weekend 21-10, ranked second in the 15th Region behind frontrunner Johnson Central (21-7).

Lawrence County, under the direction of head coach Kenny Horn, entered the final week of the regular-season with games remaining versus Ashland Blazer (May 14), Pikeville (May 16), Lewis County (Mat 18) and Fleming County (May 18). The Lady Bulldogs are scheduled to play both Lewis County and host Fleming County in the Fleming County Triangle in Flemingsburg on Friday.

Lawrence County is matched up against Magoffin County in the 57th District Tournament at Johnson Central on May 21.

Johnson Central is the reigning 15th Region champion. The Lady Eagles edged Magoffin County 5-4 in the 2012 57th District Tournament championship game.

Ashland holds off Blackcats

PRESTONSBURG — Host Prestonsburg had a late rally come up short Saturday.

Ashland pitcher Evan Yongue hurled a complete game, three-hitter to lead the Tomcats over Prestonsburg 2-1 in the King of the Mountain Classic.

Yongue registered nine strikeouts and allowed three walks on his way to earning the win.

Prestonsburg sophomore pitcher Jarrin Hall suffered the loss.

Ashland standout Logan Salow, who also pitched a perfect game on Saturday, led the late-regular-season matchup off with a double and then scored on an error. Salow led the Tomcat offense, finishing 2-for-4.

Ashland scored its other run in the sixth inning when Jake Hall pushed Cade O'Bryan across on a fielder's choice. After O'Bryan scored, Ashland led 2-0.

The other run came in the sixth, when Jake Hall plated Cade O'Bryan on a fielder's choice.

Prestonsburg got on the scoreboard with a run in the seventh inning but couldn't pull even. The Blackcats scored by stealing home.

Three-time defending 15th Region All "A" Classic champion Prestonsburg fell 0-1 to Lawrence County in another game played in the King of the Mountain Classic.

The Blackcats carried a two-game winning streak into the King of the Mountain Classic. Prestonsburg exited the weekend 19-12 overall. The Blackcats finished the regular-season 6-0 in the 58th District/Floyd County Conference.

Prestonsburg was scheduled to visit Letcher County Central for a regular-season finale on Tuesday.

Grimm helps EKU to Senior Day win

RICHMOND — The Eastern Kentucky University baseball team salvaged Sunday's series finale by pounding out 18 hits in a 14-6 win over Jacksonville State on Senior Day at Turkey Hughes Field.

Eight seniors were honored before the game, and two of those seniors, Austin Grisham and Shaun Ball, belted key homers to help ignite the rout.

Before the seniors struck, though, it was the freshmen who got the Colonel bats going. With the score tied 1-1 in the bottom of the second, freshmen Luke Wurzelbacher and Kyle Nowlin delivered back-to-back sacrifice flies to give EKU a 3-1 lead. Freshman Doug Teegarden then capped the scoring in the inning with a RBI base knock up the middle that plated Grisham and made it 4-1.

EKU continued to build on its lead in the home half of the third. Ball led off that frame with a single, stole second and scored on a double down the left field line by Kenny Hostrander. Grisham then turned on a ball, blasting only his second home of the season over the wall in right field to make the score 7-1.

After Ball clubbed a two-run shot in the fourth to give the Colonels an eight-run advantage, JSU started to slowly crawl back in the game, scoring a run in the top of the fifth and then adding three more in the top of the sixth to pull within four, 10-6.

However, EKU responded with three runs of its own in the home half of the sixth to stretch its lead back to seven and put the game out of contention. Junior Bryan Soloman led off the sixth with a home run, and consecutive singles by senior Alex Hughes and Hostrander put runners on the corner for Grisham, who lofted a sacrifice fly center field. Nowlin then plated Hostrander with a base hit up the middle that made it 13-6.

Soloman made it 14-6 in the bottom of the eighth with another home run to right-center, his second home run of the game and third of the series.

Junior right-hander Matt Lynch (1-5) started on the hill for EKU and picked up his first victory as a Colonel, going 5.1 solid innings and allowing six runs on just five hits. Senior left-hander Shane Grimm, a Paintsville High School graduate, then tossed 3.1 scoreless innings before giving way to senior right-hander Austin Rexroat, who closed out the game by getting Paschael Petrongolo to ground out to second base.

JSU starter Tony Urban (2-3) picked up the loss, lasting just 1.2 innings and surrendering four runs on three hits.

Hostrander led the EKU attack by going 5-for-5 on the day with a RBI and three runs scored.
